

About Christine Baker

Christine Baker graduated from Samford University in 2008 with a Bachelor's Degree in Psychology. She went on to pursue her Masters in Professional Counseling from Liberty University, from which she will graduate in May of 2012. She is currently doing her internship work at Pathways and has been working there since August of 2011. Before working at Pathways, she worked as a Staff Counselor at Magnolia Creek, a residential treatment center for eating disorders.

The psychological framework from which Christine works is a cognitive-behavioral approach within the context of a Christian worldview. She loves C.J. Mahaney's quote that, "Nothing in the Christian life can be rightly understood apart from God's grace through Jesus' death. They, and indeed all topics, should be studied through the lens of the gospel." She works with clients of all ages and is interested in learning more about how to help clients who have experienced trauma in their past. Her goal in counseling is to help people identify more effective strategies to both cope with difficult situations and achieve their goals.
